

THE AGGREGATE TOWER

Proposed as a framework for growth over time, the Aggregate (or perhaps Agreeable) Tower is positioned to allow early entry into the residential market. Using "kit-of-parts" concepts, but more open to revision and development, these transforming structures evolve with a family or like minded groups. The medium density potential of a site can be determined periodically, and by establishing the footprint maximum, garden spaces can be maintained on common residential blocks. With no single design or designer these assemblages of balanced components can grow and respond to specific site conditions, orientation and technology, employing principles of incremental investment.