

Project Architect

We are a medium sized well established practice in Fitzroy North, working with a range of building types, but with particular depth in education. Right now we're making places where people work, reside, learn and perform. Our work culture is respectful but friendly and informal.

We have a problem of the good variety: We're busy, with a good pipeline of interesting work. We need you to join us as we expand our studio.

We are looking for an Experienced Project Architect either approaching or beyond mid career. You're likely to be at least in your 30s, with confidence running your jobs – particularly working them up at Design Development and seeing them through Contract Administration. You'll need to program effort, delegate & guide others and manage profitability, but you also like to be hands on. That said, you don't mind learning from others, sharing knowledge and being transparent and collaborative. As importantly, you are capable of establishing and maintaining great relationships with clients and constructively engaging with other professionals and builders.

Your background could be in institutional or complex residential, but predominantly multi-res probably wouldn't translate well.

Technical skills would include an efficient familiarity with Autocad, Sketchup and ideally Archicad and a real world construction savvy gained in Australia.

We imagine the ideal person we're looking for is already in such a multi-skilled and responsible role, feels it's time for a change and wants a collegiate environment that will expose them to the makings from which to consolidate Associate level experience.

To apply, send your resume and covering letter - briefly addressing the above. If we get to meet you, we'd like to talk over examples of your work and your referees would include clients and building contractors.

Please only apply if you can make a strong case against the description - particularly your experience in the Australian context.
